

TEAM COACH PROFILE

Nick Levett Lead Team Coach

Nick has been fortunate to work across high-performance for 25 years from international football, top professional football clubs, and multiple Olympic sports as well as spending time in environments such as Google, the Red Arrows, Linklaters, Red Bull and with Les Misérables! All have been focused on human performance and helping people to become the very best they can within their respective organisations, it's just the context that changes.

Coaching in sport has allowed Nick to help athletes that have progressed to win World Cups and league titles, played in the Premier League and in the Champions League.

Nick's working life has taken him around the world to facilitate learning and training in many places, from Finland to Dubai, Toronto to Lagos. This has enabled him to support many individuals from grassroots sports to the Boardroom, and everything from small scale events to presenting and hosting national conferences.

He is a strong believer in supporting people to become adaptable, thoughtful and curious individuals, whether they are in the sports field or business world. Nick enjoys asking the challenging questions, helping people see new things and make creative connections to allow them to thrive in a healthier and happier way.

Client View

"Nick delivered our kick-off keynote presentation for our business in a way that kept a very diverse group of staff engaged in a humorous manner whilst providing interesting thoughts about what high performing individuals and teams might be. He followed this up with a bespoke session for our professional services team and facilitated a great session with actionable outcomes. Would thoroughly recommend Nick!"

Impact

Success Measures from recent programmes with national and global clients

- Enabled the Board of a £4bn national construction business to embed a new feedback culture at Director and senior leadership level to filter through the wider organisation.
- Supported senior managers to help their teams with the psychology of change as they went through a business restructure in a global technology company
- Facilitated the development of a highly effective team in the leisure sector, helping them establish themselves with a clear vision and purpose, aligned behaviours and ways of working
