

PROUD TO PARTNER WITH

OUR PARTNERSHIP

We are delighted that 2025 will be our fourth year partnering with the University of Chichester to design and deliver the Women's Sport Leadership Academy residential programme.

For more than a decade, WSLA (Women's Sport Leadership Academy) has been dedicated to changing the global under-representation and lack of development opportunities for women in sport.

More than 450 women from 76 countries have participated in the WSLA residential, occupying middle-to-senior management or Board positions across a range of international, national and regional sport federations, Ministries and National Councils of Sport, universities, and sport for development and physical activity organisations.

The WSLA residential is a much-anticipated week in the Leading Edge Performance calendar, with our team excited to support WSLA. The residential combines the essential elements for self-critical learning and development, including a unique delegate experience with high-profile guest speakers, workshops, personal development planning, physical activities, and national and international networking.

WHY WE VALUE THIS PARTNERSHIP

- The Women's Sport Leadership Academy is focused on the importance of systemic organisational, as well as individual, change across sectors and global geographies
- Enabling more women leaders to have impact as leaders in their organisation's is a direct outcome for the 25+ women who attend each year – and builds to a strong alumni cohort focused on ongoing networking and development
- The residential week itself facilitates a personal learning experience, cultivated within a safe, multicultural, diverse and trusting environment
- This unique experience is an opportunity for Leading Edge Performance Team Coaches to play a direct role in enabling women leaders in sport to fulfil their potential
- Every cohort brings another opportunity to work with women leaders who want to be better, to make a positive change for women in sport and what that represents, and to support and inspire each other's leadership journey
